Six Senses Earth Spa at Hua Hin

Six Senses Earth Spa at Hua Hin is unlike any other spa. It is made entirely from traditional natural materials forming circular domed buildings set over 1,386 square metres of water and landscaping. Six Senses Earth Spa at Hua Hin comprises a cluster of nine buildings, which appear to be floating on ponds. These include four treatment rooms with private outdoor Jacuzzi, two steam rooms, the meditation cave, relaxing area offering fresh juices, and the reception area. The earth domes are designed with openings low to the outside water, allowing refreshing breezes and energy flows to enter the buildings. Openings at the top of each building provide natural ventilation.

Six Senses Earth Spa at Hua Hin offers a comprehensive menu of specialty treatments that focus on Skin Food – the commitment that nothing should be put onto the skin that could not be eaten. In balance to these elements are philosophies of traditional medicine, such as Ayurveda and Chinese. Many of the ingredients used in the treatments are grown right at the Six Senses. These include rice, coconut, avocado, papaya, lime, aloe vera, cucumber, pandanus leaf, lemongrass, ginger, galangal, candlenut and turmeric and all freshly harvested.
