

Six Senses Eco Story

Six Senses head office raised money for Santisuk foundation

Six Senses 16th November 2010:

Six Senses head office hosts brought smiles to the faces of 80 children with games, a puppet show (using wonderful home-made puppets), and a delicious lunch ending with coconut ice cream and lots of prizes for everyone.

THB 50,000 were raised at the two auctions held at the office and the money was given to the foundation. Thank you to everyone who donated items for the auction and everyone who purchased items to raise this big amount of money.

Santisuk foundation, a registered public charity organization announced by the Ministry of Finance, works as an intermediate center to support and help needy children living in the 40 slum communities in Bangkok. To provide education fund programme, day care centre, lunch and quality life development programme.
